New on Mobile: The CL-150 for iPad App

What device(s) do you use for your language learning? Desktop? Laptop? Tablet? Phone? The CL-150 supports them all, with different activities available on each, as appropriate. The CL-150 even synchronizes your work across your devices if you use more than one.

Many CL-150 users mostly use an iPad and its Safari browser. Now these iPad users have another option — our new CL-150 for iPad app. The CL-150 for iPad app has access to all of the same languages, courses and lessons as the CL-150 website, plus the app has some advantages...

- You can use the app when disconnected from the Internet
- The CL-150's pronunciation activities do more in the app than on the iPad browser

How to Get the CL-150 for iPad App

The CL-150 for iPad app is available and free to all CL-150 users. Log in to your CL-150 account on your iPad and click the "Get the App" link on the left side of the dashboard, where you will find download instructions and your synchronization password, which you'll need to set up the app with your CL-150 account. Also, the app is mainly for learning — the CL-150's authoring, instructor, and administrative capabilities remain centralized on the CL-150 website.

Alternatively, you may continue accessing the CL-150 website through your iPad's web browser.

Android Tablet Users

The CL-150 for iPad app is only available on iPad tablets. Android tablet users should continue to access the CL-150 website through their Android tablet's web browser (we recommend Chrome). Use the CL-150 URL, and login with the same username and password you normally use. Alternatively you can download the Android smartphone app to use on your tablet when you need to be disconnected. Find that app on the CL-150 website under "Get the App".
